EDITOR'S FOREWORD

From times immemorial, Human Rights and its violations at various levels have been burning issues of academic discussions. Ever since the Second World War, a host of awareness programmes have been out there to address Human Rights violations and its terrible consequences. Subsequently, various aspects of Human Rights have been discussed at National and international levels through Conferences, Seminars and Workshops. In spite of all these awareness programmes and campaigns, nothing substantial has changed in respect of Human Rights. Today, it has become a serious and complex issue and hence our College, by arranging this Seminar, intends to offer its matching contribution to address some of the evils of Human Rights violations and its legal consequences.

Due to the organized behaviour of the society, it is possible to protect the Human Rights of an individual. Some of them are suffering due to the unorganized behaviour of the society. To create awareness among the general public our College has organized this One Day National Seminar on "HUMAN RIGHTS OF THE SUBJUGATED". The Seminar will focus on the problems of the deprived sections of the society and will ignite a sense of safety and security among the general public in respect of Human Rights and its organized violations. I do believe that the deliberations of the Keynote Speaker, Chief Guest, Guest of Honours, Resource Persons and Research Scholars from far and wide would certainly usher positive energy and new vigour among the subjugated.

MESSAGE

It is my pleasure to pen down my thoughts on the occasion of National Seminar on Human Rights of the Subjugated at Bhiwapur Mahavidyalaya, Bhiwapur, Nagpur (Maharashtra).

Right to decent life, protection from ill health and unemployment, freedom of expression, right to education, social security and others many rights. These rights are inherent to every individual and for this reason it is called Human Rights.

Child labour is undoubtedly a human rights issue. Child labour is a condition from which the children have a right to be free.

People still perceive the police as brutal and inefficient. In fact the police have shown all the three faces, i.e., as a savior, a victim and an abusing force. The observance of human rights by the police has already become mandatory by law. In fact police should be made less authoritarian, yet more accountable, and the investigated branch should be separated from the law and order handling.

Women constitute more than half of the workers in unorganized sector. The women working in unorganized sector are exploited, discriminated and even sexually harassed by their employers. Awareness of the issue of violence against women, and educating boys and men to view women as valuable partners in life, in the development of a society and attain peace are just as important as taking legal steps to protect women's human rights.

Basic instinct on hearing the concept of contractual labour is the name sparingly clad men and women who work at construction sites, factories and alongside the roads, working in the scorching sun and pitiful conditions.

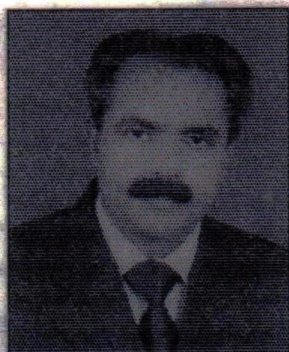

The policy makers of the country must remember that the welfare of the workers is a real concern as a large number of people in the country still continue to live below the poverty line.

I thank the organizers for making me a part of this conference and giving me an opportunity to express my views on Human Rights.

I wish the seminar a GRAND SUCCESS.

PROGRAMME OUTCOME

Backward Class Youth Relief Committee's Bhiwapur Mahavidyalaya, Bhiwapur, under the auspices of its 'Human Rights Education Centre' organized UGC sponsored One Day National Seminar on 'Human Rights of the Subjugated' on 20th January 2017 at Bhiwapur Mahavidyalaya, Bhiwapur. The core areas of the National Seminar were;

01. Women in Unorganized Sector and Human Rights
02. Child Labour and Human Rights
03. Small Land Owners and Human Rights
04. Human Rights of the Contract Labourers
05. Human Rights of Police

The deliberations made by the Key Note Speaker and the prominent academicians opened up new vistas in the wide spectrum of human rights of the subjugated. Human Rights violations are rampant in the society. Its nature and its repercussions vary according to time, place and people. The agony is the same always. This National Seminar enabled us to bring together under one umbrella the human rights activists who fight relentlessly to mitigate the woes of otherwise scattered and unorganized women folk, child labourers, labourers, agriculturists, small land owners and Police. It enabled us to understand from close corners the amount of injuries and injustices rendered to these people. During this occasion, the prominent speakers explained in detail the remedies available in the law book to get rid of these human rights violations. It also enabled many of the participating fellows to write Research Papers on various aspects of human rights violations and its remedies.
