Best Practice-I

1. Blood Donation Camp

2. Objectives of the Practice

The Blood donation camp organized every year aims at bringing awareness in students of their social responsibility to save innumerable lives.

3. The Context

Road accidents lead to serious injuries and patients with chronic illnesses need blood transfusion. This is the time when the donated blood is used as not all can afford to pay.

4. The Uniqueness

Volunteers from NCC and NSS units since inception have adopted this practice after witnessing loss of life due to blood loss. This practice has garnered support from the local community as well. Myths related to donation of blood are busted and help is rendered to the needy.

5. Constraints/ Limitations if any

All the efforts in making the Blood Donation Camp were successful barring a few incidents wherein parents resisted their wards to donate blood owing to ignorance and superstitions surrounding it.

1. Evidence of Success

A total of 114 volunteers donated blood and this noble act has helped people who could afford to in case of emergencies. The camp instilled in our students their responsibility towards society and nation.

2. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

The major problems faced during this camp was the resistance of parents to permit their wards for blood donation despite the awareness campaigns.

Best Practice-2

1. Correction of Language Notebooks of English & Marathi

2. Objectives of the Practice

Very peculiar and seemingly unprecedented, the correction of notebooks of English and Marathi language is a practice that has been a part of our practice to instill in students the application of all the skills of language.

3. The Context

After a thorough analysis for languages, we been prompted to adopt a strategy to make students understand their mistakes with a clear understanding of the skills applied while writing a language.

4. The Uniqueness

This strategy seemingly very peculiar and unprecedented is the outcome of our understanding of the students' curiosity and eagerness to uplift themselves to the minimum standards required for progression to Higher Education and it is here that our intervention helps build their capacity to sustain the competitive environment.

5. Constraints/ Limitations if any

The most difficult part of the entire exercise was to make students write down in their notebooks. As the writing exercise had given way to scrolling the screens of mobile Handsets and note taking habit in students slowly diminishing, it was a herculean task to make them write and submit.

1. Evidence of Success

Despite the many hindrances in the submission of students' notebooks, the feedback from the teachers have definitely made them understand the contexts in which words can be used, the spellings and the structure of sentences.

2. Problems Encountered and Resources Required

It wasn't an easy-going task for the teachers of languages to go through every page of what the students have written. moreover, the entire exercise demanded time and efforts to read, correct and then explain the same to the students.

Joseph Addison and Richard Steele started the Spectator in March 1711. The general purpose of the Papers in this periodical was to expose the false arts of life, disguises of cunning, vanity, and affectation and to recommend simplicity in our dress, discourse and behaviour, after the discussion with the other members of the club it was agreed that the writer ought to attack vices and follies, especially when they are found in the people from high offices.

5. Examine the use of personification in the poem

⇒ The poet has aptly made the use of personification in the poem. The poet has personified Love as the god of love and Flora as the goddess of flowers and vegetation. The poet has also beautifully depicted the rose and the Willy as rivals. The Willy is a representation of the white race and the rose depicting the reddish skin lotus is the ideal fusion of the beauty and grace of the rose and the Willy lotus by and rose have also been personified in the poem.
